About the Workshop:

The monstrous virus Covid-19 has shaken the whole world. It has brought uncertainty, fear, social distancing, economic instability, depression and so many crises in our life. This situation is hampering research around the world. In this connection this type of academic engagement is important and inevitable for our existence. Actually creation and dissemination of knowledge through research is one of the core functions of the higher learning institutions. Apart from generating new knowledge, the higher learning institutions have the responsibility of training the intellectual manpower required for all sectors of the society. Quality of manpower is the most important factor for producing good quality researches. With the passage of time, various institutions continue to carry their own important role and improved methods in improving the quality of research. But in the current Corona atmosphere, research work is being hampered due to various reasons. This has raised a concern among the academic community, social thinkers and policy makers. Amongst all other factors, training of the researchers is the most crucial one. We need to think about how young researchers can do research independently without relying on anyone. To improve the situation there is a need for providing training on research methodology to the young scholars. The present workshop is an endeavor in this direction. The present workshop will focus on the following broad themes.

Unit- 1: Understanding the Research Process.

Unit- 2: Problem identification and preparatory work.

Unit- 3: Bibliographic Research.

Unit- 4: Research Design.

Unit- 5: Methodology, Methods, Tools and Techniques.

Unit- 6: Data Processing and Analysis and Interpretation.
